Hershey, PA (PRWEB) July 19, 2005 -- Idea Group Inc. (IGI), a publisher of information science books, today announced its intentions to create an "Encyclopedia of Cyber Warfare and Cyber Terrorism". The new encyclopedia is an expansion of its growing technology publications, and is set for release at the end of 2006. IGI is seeking all interested security researchers to participate in this publication by submitting proposal papers by September 15, 2005.

 "Bringing skilled security researchers together from around the world for this project is critical in assembling the needed expertise for addressing cyber warfare and the emerging domain of cyber terrorism" said Dr. Janczewski, co-editor of this project. "Through a collaboration effort such as this encyclopedia, we may be able to create a forum for developing the security technologies needed to prevent the use of cyberspace by terrorists."

 The "Encyclopedia of Cyber Warfare and Cyber Terrorism" will encompass attack and defense approaches to the Global Information Infrastructure. "Electronic-based attacks are increasingly becoming prolific as more of the world's economic infrastructure and global telecommunications becomes integrated," added Dr. Colarik, co-editor. "This encyclopedia project seeks to identify the underlying technologies that are being attacked and the technologies that are being used to secure the Global Information Infrastructure."

 For those security professionals and researchers interested in participating, the call for papers can be acquired at http://www.idea-group.com/encyclopedia/cyber/welcome.htm. For more information on the "Encyclopedia of Cyber Warfare and Cyber Terrorism", please contact Dr. Lech J. Janczewski at 64 9 373-7599 Ext. 87538 (Auckland, New Zealand) or Dr. Andrew M. Colarik at (330) 220-8355 (Cleveland, Ohio), or go to the website listed above for other contact details.
